Sheriff's Office Gets a New Look Online

Report a crime, view the latest arrests, sign up for E-news or find out the deputy and corrections officer of the month. These are just a few of the new options available to you at just a click on the new and improved Mobile County Sheriff's Office website.

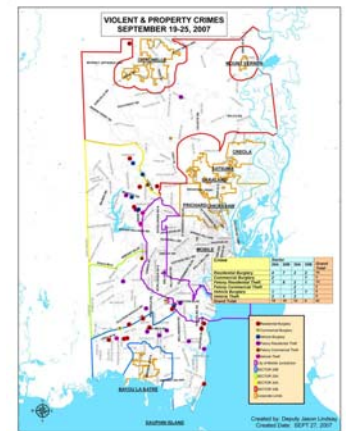

The newly designed website offers a first-hand tour of Metro Jail, crime statistics by neighborhood and dozens of ways to get involved in Sheriff's Office programs.

The site changes daily with new inmate information, local news and job openings; we encourage you to visit our site often and appreciate your input.

A Message from the Sheriff...

Dear Friends,

As many of you may have already noticed, we have a new look to our website. The purpose of re-designing the site was to keep you informed, encourage your input and allow you the opportunity to give us feedback.

Research has shown that crime is significantly reduced in areas where County Action Groups (CAGS) are organized; these groups and a variety of other volunteer and paid positions are available on the web and are in need of proactive participants like you.

Some of our best arrests and biggest drug raids have been made based on information citizens have given our deputies. We'd like to take that one step further and allow you the ability to report crimes anonymously as they happen. Whether the crime is underage drinking or suspicious drug activity in your neighborhood, we want to know about it.

We hope you take the time to surf our new site and let us know what you think.

Sincerely,

Sheriff Sam Cochran
